Non-HTML inter-paragraph spacing

MS Word defaults to HTML above and below spacing.

That means that the above/below spacing is the maximum of the below spacing on the first paragraph and the above spacing on the second paragraph. Non-HTML mode is cumulative – it simply adds the two.

Non-HTML inter-paragraph spacing

There is a compatibility mode flag to turn HTML mode off. LibreOffice already honours that flag, but it needs to also round-trip it, so that this always takes up two pages.
