5 Tips for Winning Scholarships

1. Become Brag Worthy

Find your passion and celebrate it through action in your school, neighborhood, and community. Scholarship providers are seeking applicants who are active and have the impact society. Who does not look forward to the moment when they can claim a future industry leader, or superstar as one of their own. This could be you! Start exploring how your passion can develop into an expertise or you may decide there is a better life experiences, decisions, and actions that make you, well, you.

2. Begin with the END in Mind

Get started early searching for scholarships, chart your deadlines, and keep copies close in one place. There is nothing worse than creating your accomplishments resume, requesting letters of recommendation, and painstakingly writing and reviewing your essay only to miss the deadline; not to mention thousands of dollars to fund your education!

3. Show Instead of Tell

A winning scholarship essay is personal, passionate, and specific. Your essay should show who you are through highlighting examples of your impact on the lives of others, illustrate showcases your shining personal qualities, and proof of the intestinal fortitude required to reach your goals. If you tell the scholarship readers that you are passionate about helping others, provide examples that show your commitment such as 100 hours volunteered at the local animal shelter. A memorable experience during your volunteer work that convinced you becoming a veterinarian is your destined career.

4. Secure Outstanding Recommendations

Scholarship readers can review your laundry list of extra-curricular activities and even awards earned, this information is in your application. An outstanding letter of recommendation is a portrait that you have painted of yourself through your essay and involvement. When requesting a letter of recommendation, a teacher, counselor, supervisor, or mentor who has witnessed your personal growth and accomplishments can help you highlight your strengths or she will not mention that you were Secretary for FBLA but will highlight your accomplishments on your peers while in that role. Your recommendation should, like your essay, show why it would be wise for them to invest in you.

5. Be Persistent

If you have followed all of the above steps, in your hands or on your computer, will | winning scholarship package. Your polished application package in addition to persi: scholarship selection increase your chances of submitting a winning scholarship app application to each scholarship and pay attention to the details.
